Dr. Joshua Lederberg
Assistant Professor of Genetics
The University of Wisconsin
Madison, Wisconsin

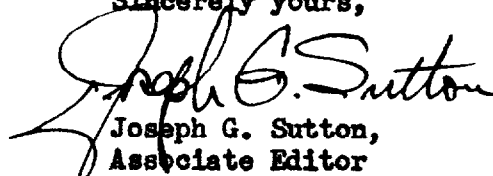

Dear Doctor Lederberg:

It was a particular pleasure making your acquaintance recently in your Madison office. Your comments at that time on the field of Microbial Genetics have been of help to me, and I must thank you for being generous with your time.

There is a news-worthiness as well as an importance in this particular field of genetics which makes us want some day to publish in it. Please remember that we should be very pleased to hear from you if you have a manuscript in preparation at any time in the future. If there is any help that we might offer you, with marketing advice, with suggestions for illustrative material, or with critical comments on a partial manuscript, I promise you every courtesy at our command.

With kindest regards, I am,

Sincerely yours,

Joseph G. Sutton,
